Disappointment.

The bard has sung; God never formed a soul
Without its own peculiar mate to meet
Its wandering half when ripe to crown the whole
Bright plan of bliss most heavenly, most complete.

But thousand evil things there are that hate
To look on happiness; these hunt, impede,
And, leagued with time, space, circumstance and fate,
Keep kindred heart from heart, to pine, and pant, and bleed.

And as the dove to far Palmyra flying
From where the native fountains of Antioch beam,
Wearied, exhausted, longing, panting, sighing,
Lights sadly at the desert's bitter stream.

So many a soul, o'er life's drear desert faring,
Love's pure, congenial spring unfound,
Unquaffed,
Suffers—recoils—then, thirsty and despairing
Of what it would, descends and sips the nearest draught!

Death of a Venerable White Elephant.

The oldest of the white elephants, which, the Times of India says, was born in 1770, died in its temple of Bangkok in November last. Every one knows that this famous white elephant, before which a whole people bow the knee, is the emblem of the kingdom of Siam. It is honored with the most beautiful presents, for the Indians, full of the idea of metamorphosis, still believe that so majestic an animal could be animated by only the spirit of a God or of an Emperor. Each white elephant possesses its palace, a vessel of gold, and harness resplendent with jewels. Several mandarins are attached to its service, and feed it with cakes and sugar cane. The King of Siam is the only personage before whom it bows the knee, and a similar salutation is rendered it by the Monarch. The deceased idol was accorded a magnificent funeral. A hundred Buddhist priests officiated at the ceremony. The three surviving white elephants, preceded by trumpets, and followed by an immense concourse of people, accompanied the funeral car to the bank of the Menam, where the King and his noble lords received the remains, which were transported to the opposite bank for burial. A procession of thirty vessels floating in that curious ceremony. All the floating houses, arranged in double file on the Menam to the number of 60,000, were adorned with flags and symbolical attributes.

London Atmosphere.

London, England, has a most delightful atmosphere. There is nothing flimsy or gauzy about the air of London. In the language of slang it is not too thin. There is something real and tangible about it; something you can see, and feel, and realize; not the transparent stuff we have in Detroit. It must be seen and felt to be appreciated. It has such a reality, such a substance, in fact, that if it surrounded Chicago it would undoubtedly be heavily mortgaged. London's atmosphere owes its consistency to the fumes arising from the many coal fires of the city. In a paper read before the Society of Arts it was estimated that the coal annually consumed in London is 8,000,000 tons, equal to one per cent. of sulphur to 80,000 tons, or as oil of vitrol to 245,000 tons. This is more than five times the amount given off from all the sulphuric acid works in the country.—Free Press.

MARSHAL BAZAINE is living in Spain in very embarrassed circumstances. He has appealed for aid to all of his old comrades, including President Mac Mahon, but in vain.

The Government proposes to spend 500,000 francs in fetes in honor of the Exhibition. The dates are not fixed, but will probably come at the time of the distribution of awards.

ITALY is to have a jubilee of destruction next year, when 1800 years will have elapsed since the two cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum were destroyed by earthquakes and eruptions from Mount Vesuvius. It is now intended to "celebrate the day," and the scene of the ceremonies is to be at Pompeii itself, as being the better known of the two buried cities.

The wedding of Colonel Russell Hastings and Miss Emily Platt was solemnized at the Executive Mansion on the evening of the 19th instant. The wedding was very quiet, only the immediate friends of the President and his family and of the bride and groom being present.

ADOLPH SUTRO is of opinion that the header of the Sutro Tunnel is not over 250 feet away from the face of the east drift on the 1640 level of the Savage mine. In that case the two should be connected in about thirty days.

The Gold Hill News says: Senator Sharon has not drawn his salary for nearly a year, not having occupied his seat during that time.

SPECIAL FROM WASHINGTON.

Feeble Statesmen—The Railroad in Congress—Arizonaans at the Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8, 1878.
EDITOR CITIZEN:—The day having been agreed upon by the two Houses for a final adjournment, but a few days remain for the perpetration of good or evil to the country. I believe it is generally conceded that this is about the weakest Congress that ever afflicted the country since the foundation of the Government. Very few of its members rise to the dignity of statesmanship or make any pretensions in that direction; hence they resort to all sorts of strategic measures to get into the Congressional Record, and to convince their constituents that they are really very large sized toads in the political puddle.

Many get up in times of great confusion (and that nearly all the time exists) and go through the pantomime of making a speech, shriek at the top of their voices, shake their gory locks, pound their desks, &c. Of course no one hears what they say, in fact they have said nothing, but the supposed speech is handed to the reporter, and the next day it appears in the Record, and in a few days the county papers come back from the district of this solon freighted with columns of editorials either praising or criticising the masterly effort of this great statesman. The favorite theory of small minded men, is that in order to raise themselves to favor they must tear some one else down. A great, good man never attempts this; he only seeks to rise on his own merit and ability, but a person not possessing either strikes right and left, believing he is going to rise on the downfall of some one else. Of course the lives of such are brief and they generally sink below contempt. I only mention this fact as an illustration of the present Congress.

The great questions affecting the welfare of the country have in the main been lost sight of, and Congress has been turned into a mud mill, both parties have tried to say which could throw the most filth.

The great railroad war practically ended last Monday the 4th instant, when the friends of the Texas and Pacific measure moved to postpone the further consideration of the subject until next December. A very large lobby has been here ever since Congress convened working for it. They entertained handsomely on Thirteenth street, and free passes were given to every one supposed to be friendly to the measure on almost any road from New Orleans to Boston, or from New York to Omaha. The result was that a daily mutual admiration society assembled on Thirteenth street, and over the good wines and fragrant cigars, each party declared that he carried in his breeches pocket Senators and members of Congress to an unlimited extent, that Scott was King and no sane man dare dispute it. The great Thomas came at least once a week in his palatial car, and while he has some of the best elements known to railroad jobbery which enables him to form combinations, and put up freights and fares at figures our Pacific railroad people never dare to attempt, still Thomas in many ways is human and possesses human weakness. He loved to see his courtiers flock around him on Thirteenth street, and the music of their voices was sweet to his ears, when they told him what a great man he was and how the crook of his fingers swayed the nation as forests are rendered by a mighty tempest. And so the great Thomas came and went feeling assured that when his royal edict was issued all other legislation would stop until his work was ended. Hence, last Sunday his palatial car rolled into the Baltimore and Potomac depot, a gilded carriage rolled the great Thomas to headquarters. His royal pleasure was made known to his courtiers when hats went up amid three cheers and a tiger. This brought on a crisis. The free lunchers and pass sharps when called upon to deliver enacted a magnificent farce. They had taken Thomas to the galleries of Congress and told him to behold the land and every living creature beneath all of which should be his, but when it came to the point of delivering the property it was found that they had no more interest in it than the Devil had in the property with which he tried to bribe our Saviour. Every effort that could be put forth to prevent railroad communication with Arizona except through this Texas and Pacific scheme was resorted to. Every influence was brought to bear to prevent the Southern Pacific from crossing the river at Yuma, but when the matter was fairly understood even members friendly to Scott spurned the attempt to commit so flagrant an outrage upon the people of Arizona. General McDowell, be it said to his credit, wrote a strong letter showing that every interest was subserved by running cars over the river and none injured. The Secretary of War indorsed it, and yesterday the Military Committee of the Senate by unanimous vote recommended the passage of a bill giving the company the right of way over the river. The Southern Pacific Company intend to continue the construction of the road from Yuma to Maricopa Wells at an early day, and from that point will build on to El Paso as soon as there is any reasonable prospect of being met there by another road.

The bill introduced for legalizing the laws of Arizona and providing for taking a census is on file in the House of Representatives, and would undoubtedly pass the House by a large majority, but it is doubtful if it can be reached this session. It would have been passed long ago, but for the factious opposition of the Texas Pacific which caused a great delay in the committee.

A number of Arizonaans have been here this Winter and Spring. Among them, Gov. Safford, W. B. Helling, W. J. Osborn, M. Power and D. A. Sanford. They all seem thoroughly impressed with the wealth and beauty of Arizona, and have created a long desire on the part of many a poor man and woman to go to this land of gold and silver.

Delegate Stevens has worked earnestly and zealously for the people of Arizona, every request of friend or foe has been promptly looked after. His excellent good sense, quiet unostentatious deportment and characteristic habit of minding his own business and letting that of other people alone, has given him a first-class standing in Congress and the departments. I am no partisan, but mention this as a simple act of justice, a fact that is universally conceded by both Republicans and Democrats. The Indian Commissioner sat down on the claims due our people some time ago. He seems to have had a mania for robbing citizens in order to show that he was a zealous defender of the government. This began to be understood and the result was that those who believed strongest in the peace policy began to think that it was better to trust these men of war than suffer such high handed robbery. I overheard a conversation between the Commissioner and a frontiersman as follows:

Commissioner.—Have you not believed in, and defended our policy?

Frontiersman.—Yes sir, but in doing so I believed I was defending justice to the Indian and whites. Our people furnished supplies to feed the Indians four years ago, and thereby averted an Indian war. The accounts have been examined by the proper officers time and again and found correct. Some of these people are now in poverty in consequence of not being paid by the government as they should have been, and you as ruthlessly as a highwayman, with one stroke of the pen and without the least examination pronounce against these honest claims.

Commissioner.—I declare to you my friend I would not harm a woman intentionally. How then could I a noble specimen of an Arizonaan? Come with me and these claims shall be placed on the velvet pathway that leads to the strong box of honest John Sherman.

The last we saw of the Commissioner and our noble frontiersman they had hugged each other at least the fortieth time. The Commissioner had secured a zealous advocate, the grave Senators were approached with powerful arguments in favor of the present Commissioner, and as a result the Indian Department was not transferred.

Military Orders.

By authority from Headquarters Military Division of the Pacific, the Headquarters of the Sixth Cavalry are transferred to Camp Lowell, A. T., to which point the Adjutant and Band of the regiment will proceed at once, if there be Government transportation available, if not, as soon after July 1, as practicable.

First Lieutenant C. G. Gordon, R. Q. M., Sixth Cavalry, will remain at Camp Grant, A. T., until further orders.

Upon the arrival of the Headquarters of his regiment at Camp Lowell, A. T., Colonel James Oakes, Sixth Cavalry, will assume command of the post. The journey performed by Private W. H. Agey, Signal Service, from Yuma, A. T., to Camp Grant, A. T., under orders of the Superintendent of the Military Telegraph line, dated April 1, is authorized.

The Quartermaster's Department will pay the necessary expenses incurred for transportation.

Colfax in Oakland.

On the evening of the 17th instant, Schuyler Colfax delivered his lecture on "Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln," at the First Congregational Church, Oakland, for the benefit of the Ladies' Relief Society, netting upwards of $350. The following morning he left on the eastward bound train. He will remain a week at Salt Lake City.

Rich Strikes in the Miami and Pinal Mines—The Times, Weather Health, etc.—General Interesting News Items.

RAMBO CAMP, June 10, 1878.
EDITOR CITIZEN:—Peace and prosperity prevails in the camp at present, and developments continue satisfactory on all sides. The weather is very warm, but we was blessed this evening with a gentle shower which has cooled the atmosphere and makes the twilight delightful. By the way in speaking of the weather it brings to my mind a little error, that occurred in a letter from me to THE CITIZEN dated May 12, 1878, in which I stated that the thermometer stood at 80 at sunrise. It should have been at sunset instead.

Through the courtesy of an obliging friend I am enabled to give the degrees of heat three times on that date; at sunrise, 68; noon, 90; sunset, 82. The highest score yet made here this season is 96 in the shade, which is not extremely hot for this season of the year. The health of the people is excellent.

They have made a very rich strike in the Miami mine near this place. The vein is about two feet wide and the ore is a higher grade than any ever before extracted. This ore body was discovered in running a drift northeast into the hill, the ore above referred to is at a depth, perpendicular from the surface of about thirty feet. The mine looks more promising at present than ever before.

They have also made a new and very rich strike in the Pinal mine, owned by Cyrus Mills of Oakland, California. Some of the ore assays over $5000 per ton. This mine was the first silver vein located in Globe District, and was located on the 16th day of August, 1875, by William Hope and Henry Rambo, who subsequently sold it to J. D. Wilson of San Francisco, California, from whom the present owner purchased it. He has been energetic and has always paid punctually for his labor and therefore merited success. From all appearances at present he has a bonanza which will fully repay him for all his outlays.

The Quartzite is still yielding rich ore. Messrs. Buck and Hayes have shipped two or three tons of their rich ore to the mill at McMillen's camp for reduction. The Miami mill is running on ore at present from the Miami mine. Mr. Whalen, Eaton and others have a splendid prospect in the Stewart mine on the Quartzite. From all accounts its richness is unsurpassed by any other mine of the camp. Mr. Whalen is one of the first pioneers of Globe District and has struggled hard to make a raise, and has finally succeeded. He was the first man that located a mine on Mineral Hill. This he gave to Mr. McNelly of Globe City, subsequently the location run out and Messrs. Byron and Bixby located the ground, and since then the property has become famous for both extent and richness of the ore body.

By the way, I have it direct from the gossip committee of Watsonville that one of our bonanza proprietors of the Era and Elva mines has a notion of doing something on the fantastic order, but we cannot always tell how these mysterious murmurs will terminate. I will tell you more about it after the shiver.

The political pulse is beginning to beat freely, but is entirely premature it being several months yet until election. However, I will give you the full particulars of all grand political schemes and measures in contemplation this Fall in my next letter to THE CITIZEN.

Something About our New United States Marshal.

The President has appointed Major Crawley P. Dake, of Romeo, Michigan, to be United States Marshal of Arizona. Major Dake, at the date of his appointment was Chief Deputy United States Marshal at Detroit. He is an old Union soldier, having raised a company of 123 men at the outbreak of the Rebellion. He was then gazetted as Captain of the Fifth Michigan Cavalry. He was in all the fights and skirmishing of the Curtis brigade on the Potomac, and in Western Virginia until 1865, when he returned home with the rank of Major and the appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel to assist in raising the Thirtieth Michigan Infantry. The close of the war, however, happily prevented his regiment from taking the field. Major Dake was shortly afterward appointed United States Assessor of Internal Revenue, and served in that capacity until the consolidation of his district. The Detroit Evening News closes an account of Major Dake's past services by stating that "his record as a soldier and office-holder is unexceptionable," and that the Territory of Arizona may be congratulated "on its acquisition of a gallant soldier, an honest and efficient official, and a courteous gentleman."

The Adjournment of Congress.

Senate.

The Senate reassembled at 6.30 a.m. on the 20th instant. A little business was transacted when Senators Anthony and Thurman who were appointed as Committee on the part of the Senate to wait on the President, reported that they had performed that duty, and that the President replied that he had no further communication to make.

At seven o'clock, Ferry, President pro tem., said: "The hour of seven o'clock having arrived, it gives me pleasure to congratulate the Senate on the termination of the session of nearly seven months duration, and to comply with the joint resolution of the two Houses fixing the hour of final adjournment. Permit me, Senators, to cordially thank you for your favor, your confidence and your courtesy, without which I should have failed to meet the delicate and responsible duties of the chair. Commending you all in parting to the care of the same beneficent Ruler, who has preserved unbroken our number throughout the prolonged labors now ended, I declare the session adjourned sine die. [Applause on the floor.]

House.

The House reassembled at 6.30 a.m. with a few members present.

At 6.45 Rainey, of the Committee on Enrolled Bills, appeared in the House with the enrolled Sundry Civil bill which the Speaker laid before the House and signed, amid applause.

At 6.52 a message from the President announced his approval of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill.

Cymer announced that together with Willis of Kentucky and Conger, he had waited on the President and that the President had stated that he had no further communication to make to Congress.

The hour of seven o'clock having arrived, the Speaker said: Gentlemen of the House of Representatives—The arduous labors of the session are closed. Let us hope, under the providence of God, that they will insure to the solid welfare and happiness of the people. Expressing the fervent hope that each and every one of you may have a safe journey to your respective homes, it only remains for the Speaker, in pursuance of the resolution of the two Houses for the adjournment of the Forty-fifth Congress, to declare that this House stands adjourned without day. [Applause.]

National Academy of Education.

Ten minutes before Congress adjourned Senator Bruce, by request, introduced a bill to establish a National Academy of Education, giving preference to the genius and talent of the land to orphans of the Republic. Referred to the Committee on Education and Labor. It provides that the President and Vice-President of the United States, Chief Justice, the Speaker and Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and Commissioner of Education shall be a body corporate, to be known as "The National Academy of Education." They are to establish Academies in the several States, and Congress is to appropriate annually one-third of the amount necessary for their support, provided the State Legislatures and the people of the States contribute the other two-thirds. It further provides that there shall be established in the District of Columbia an Academy on the basis of equality with any University in the world, which shall be a model for State Academies.

Great Fire in Boston.

Boston, June 17.—At 10.30 last night a fire broke out in the main building of the extensive pork slaughtering and curing establishment of Chas. H. North & Co., Milford street, Somerville. Owing to the highly inflammable character of the structure the flames spread with great rapidity and all save one building were destroyed. The loss is estimated between $700,000 and $800,000.

Blair's Lament.

When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And gave the world—Montgomery Blair.
It was a mean thing for Freedom to do,
And doubtless she is sorry for it now,
And bedews the dome of the Capitol with tears of regret. But the country has to pay the accompaniment bills all the same, and $20,000 is the first call.

HEER BERSO, the greatest locomotive manufacturer in Europe, died at Berlin the other day, worth $15,000,000. He employed 10,000 hands. His father began work on a small borrowed capital.
